I create bespoke sculptural papercut and porcelain artwork for commissions.

My art connects people
to their most treasured
memories, and influences
how they feel about their surrounding environment.

Vintage map
papercut artwork

Vintage maps and texts are used to create sculptural geo-historic collections.

These collections bring together elements of place; small details merging the past with the present.

They are revised geographies, connecting individuals to their most treasured memories.

Porcelain artwork

I create bespoke artwork from hundreds of small shell-like porcelain pieces.

I have spent years developing my own technique of shaping, glazing and transferring text onto the delicate medium of porcelain.

This exciting range of sculptural work uses colour to bring to life memories and experiences.

How I work

I work with each client individually drawing on their memories of special places and experiences, to create a stunning bespoke piece of art.

Hours of research go into sourcing the individual pieces of vintage maps and guides. Each one is secured into place with an entomology pin.

Glaze colours and textures are chosen specially for each ceramic artwork

All work is professionally framed in a white stained wooden box-frame.

Most recent commission testimonial

“We love it!

Thank you. So beautiful and clever. We spot new things every time we look at
it. A beautiful collection of memories.”
